and that of other Albany residents may change if LURC approves a proposed high-stakes bingo hall on the Old West Bethel Road. Residents raised a number of questions last week about the project, arguing that it did not meet many of the conditions required for approval by the LURC commissioners. Among the concerns regarding the plan is the threat of contamination of the Crooked River watershed by sewage from the 2,000-seat hall. The septic system would be built at nearly the same level as the estimated 10-year flood plain. Bingo hall supporters and opponents make their case to state land board

By ALISON ALOISIO

Some things are clear, and some things you just have to speculate about, said bingo hall opponent Margaret Wille.

Two things were clear at last week's LURC hearing regarding a proposed high-stakes bingo hall in Albany: 1) most residents want no part of the Passamaquoddy Indians' project, because they believe it will have a negative effect on their way of life; 2) the Passamaquoddy find irony in that objection, given the effect on them of the arrival of Europeans centuries ago.

Those two certainties aside, almost everything else surrounding the bingo hall application was the subject of plenty of speculation.

The Passamaquoddy Indian Tribe is proposing a 43,000-square foot,

'It's one of the best places in the world to get away. Please don't ruin that for all of us in Albany.'

2,000-person bingo hall on the Old West Bethel Road, off Route 5 in Albany. The $5 million project would be financed by Snake River Financing Ltd., whose president and only shareholder is Tamir Sapir of New York City.

The hall would operate up to 27 weekends a year, mainly in the spring and fall. About 70 percent of the bingo players would come by tour bus, according to the developers.

LURC commissioners must ultimately decide -- probably in November -- whether to rezone the 18-acre land parcel from general management to general development, thus opening the door for the hall. Other agencies, including the Department of Environmental Protection and the Army Corps of Engineers, are also expected to review the project.

LURC statute stipulates that a request to rezone may not be approved unless there is substantial evidence that the change would be consistent with LURC's Comprehensive Land Use Plan and the intent of its statutes. The change must also satisfy demonstrated need in the community or area and will have no undue adverse impact on

WMNF faces deeper cutbacks in staffing

By MICHAEL DANIELS and Associated Press

Staffing in the White Mountain National Forest could be cut by 17 more positions if proposed federal budget cuts are adopted.

The staff is now 110, which is 48 fewer people than a recent forest study showed was necessary to adequately manage the forest.

The proposed cuts would slash that number to 93 by the year 2,000. The WMNF draws more visitors annually than any other national forest in the country.

Groups such as the Appalachian Mountain Club and the Society for the Protection of New Hampshire Forests worry the proposed 20 percent budget cut and staff cuts could leave vast areas of the 770,000 acre forest unmanaged.

"It's sad, and it's discouraging," society member Richard Ober said. "Unfortunately, the reductions aren't coming with an equal reduction in need," Appalachian Mountain Club spokesman Paul Cuhna said. "In fact, the need for their services is increasing."

Forest Service Supervisor Donna Hepp said the proposed cuts would make the service more efficient.

"We're looking at a streamlined organization and facilities that will be designed to be more efficient and economical," Hepp said.

Forest Service staff have to juggle the demands of ski areas, hikers, loggers and environmentalists.

The service already is under fire after it began charging user fees this summer at forest parking lots to make up for previous budget cuts.

The new proposed cuts could result in fewer firefighters and rescue workers, shorter hours and fewer staff at ranger stations, as well as delays in requests for complex permits from ski areas and recreation groups.

They cuts also could result in the merger of ranger districts and other Forest Service offices.

Hepp is asking for public comment on the proposal. To respond, write to the White Mountain National Forest CRIA Team, 719 Main St., Laconia 03246.

Stakeholders meet, discuss shape of Newry river

By BETSEY FOSTER

They did not want a study.

They wanted action.

Approximately three dozen people who own land along the Sunday River gathered recently to discuss what steps they could take to prevent more of their land and timber from being washed downstream as the river continually shifts and erodes the river banks.

Frustration at not being able to take action was the continual voice heard from many attendees.

"Why can't we just mine the gravel out, put it back up river, and let it come down again. That's recycling right there," was the straightforward solution voiced by Fred Burk of Newry, whose property is along the Sunday River.

While not a viable option under today's environmental regulations, which require assessing the impact of actions before undertaking them, Burk's comment reflected the general feeling of most of the landowners at the meeting.

In a similar vein, landowner Ted Chadbourne suggested exploring whether mining the river was a viable option.

Other landowners were concerned about dealing with trees on their property that were being undermined by the river and then washed downstream.

Initiated by Randy Harrington's family, which owns property along the river, the meeting was to organize a project to study and eventually address the needs of the river's watershed.

Harrington has said the river bed has been filling up with gravel, changing the course of the river and eroding away its banks.

While concerns have been expressed about the contribution of Sunday River Ski Resort as well as logging operations to the gravel disposition down-gradient of the mountains, Oxford County Soil and Water Conservation District repre-

Andover again debating F.D. truck/space options

By ALISON ALOISIO

It's easier to build a fire station to fit the fire truck than to find a fire truck to fit the East Andover fire station.

After reaching that conclusion Tuesday, Andover selectmen decided to consider enlarging the station in East Andover or rebuilding it elsewhere.

The issue arose when fire chief Ken Dixon met with selectmen to discuss purchasing a new truck for the station. The truck currently parked in the building is a 1961 pumper.

Dixon said that while the truck runs all right and the pumper itself works, the body is in bad shape and there are leaks in various parts, such as the transmission. And when water is pumped out of the tank, rusted metal comes out with it.

Dixon said the town could put a lot of money into body work and still have an old truck.

The town of Mexico has a 1974 pumper for sale for $25,000. The truck is also somewhat of a rarity, because it would fit into the small East Andover fire station.

Dixon said if Andover bought the truck, the town could probably get six to 10 years of use from it. A new truck would cost about $150,000, Dixon said.

The town, however, has no money put aside toward the purchase of a truck. Mexico wants to sell its truck before next spring in order to be in a position to buy a new one, Dixon said.

Dixon and the selectmen agreed it was probably not feasible to hold a special Town Meeting on the issue.

Selectman Brian Mills was skeptical of the purchase anyway. "People in town have been well aware of the

Bingo plan is junkie think

The seven members of Maine's Land Use Regulation Commission will soon make a decision that will profoundly affect lives for decades to come in both western Maine and on the Passamaquoddy Indian Tribe's Pleasant Point Reservation.

For the sake of both communities, the LURC board must reject the Passamaquoddy's short-sighted plan to build a high-stakes bingo hall in Albany.

At last week's hearing on the proposal, opponents made a convincing case against it:

Surrounding towns cannot begin to provide the emergency services the bingo hall would require. Roads leading to the site are not built to handle the traffic it would generate. Those roads, and parts of the site itself, are frequently under water (water which people in Portland eventually drink). A bingo hall would be totally out of keeping with the rural character of Albany. And here is no local economic need for such an operation.

Opponents also argued that the bingo hall -- along with its inevitable traffic, noise, congestion and pollution -- would drastically alter the image, and the reality, that draws tens of thousands of tourists here each year. And it is the lure of that image, that reality, that makes it economically possible for many of the rest of us to live our lives in this beautiful place.

These reasons would seem to be compelling enough to leave the commissioners no choice but to reject the application, but we fear they will be swayed by another less tangible factor, call it, for want of a better term: "plight of the tribe."

Strictly speaking, the situation on the Passamaquoddy reservation -- more than 200 miles away on Pleasant Point -- should not be a factor in a LURC decision regarding Albany. But the bingo hall supporters are clearly counting on the plight-of-the-tribe card to trump reason and fairness.

So let's look a little more closely at it.

No thinking or feeling person would argue that the white man's treatment of the Indians two centuries ago was anything other than reprehensible.

But the fact that white America was responsible for what happened then does not relieve present day Passamaquoddy's from personal and communal responsibility for what happens to the tribe in the modern world.

And as far as the strictly financial implications of the Indians' earlier treatment are concerned, the books were closed in 1980, when Maine's two federally recognized tribes, the Passamaquoddy and the Penobscot, signed an agreement accepting $81.5 million in exchange for relinquishing all claims to land in Maine. (Passamaquoddy tribal members approved the settlement by a 2-1 margin; their elected leaders approved it unanimously.)

The settlement ended -- or was to have ended -- centuries of dependence on the state. It put the economic fate of the tribes securely in their own hands.

So, to understand now -- 17 years later -- why the Passamaquoddy's want to set up bingo tables across the state in Albany Township, we need not look back again to what the white man did to their ancestors 200 years ago.

More relevant in this case is what present-day Passamaquoddy's have done for themselves in the years since 1980 -- which, simply put, has been to squander tens upon tens of millions of dollars.

Some of the settlement money went into trust for the tribes involved, some to purchase land, some to other investments.

In the case of the Passamaquoddy's, the investments were for the most part high-profile, off-reservation business ventures -- ventures the tribal leaders and advisors felt would yield a higher return than would investments in reservation infrastructure or the tribe's own human capital.

Some of those off-reservation investments paid off very well, like the purchase and resale of the Dragon cement plant. Far more, however, failed dismally.

And tribal members, for their part, opted to take what profits there were in the form of personal dividend checks, rather than to reinvest the money in their own community.

But now the money is gone. The floodtide of easy dollars that floated the hopes of Pleasant Point has ebbed -- leaving behind only a bitter residue of hopelessness, bickering, recriminations, and charges of favoritism, incompetence and corruption.

"At the birth of our land claim," wrote former tribal Governor Allen Sockabasin in 1994, "my people had hopes of self-reliance, of regaining our way of life and our traditions, and most importantly of total independence from outside help. ... Now, 14 years after the Settlement Act, we are almost broke."

"Almost broke," and instead of totally independent of outside help, the tribe appears to be gut-hooked on it.

Tribal leaders now argue that only with an infusion of gambling money can they hope to build infrastructure for tribal members, raise educational expectations, and create meaningful jobs and economic security -- all the good things they said they were going to do, but didn't, in the 1980s.

It seems painfully ironic that at a time when our nation is committed to an historic welfare-reform initiative, a wrenching change that seeks to free the most powerless of our citizens from their dependence on handouts, that the Passamaquoddy's should be down in Albany with their own hands out.

The tribe, or its leaders at least, are addicted to money for nothing, and they're arguing with pure junkie logic for that one more hit that will get them straight.

Nonsense. Another fix will only do what any fix does: dull the pain, provide a short-lived rush, and blot out the real world -- for a little while.

It won't cure the Passamaquoddy's underlying problems. In the long run it will only make them worse.

And, inevitably, the tribe will soon come looking for a stronger fix -- namely, profits from a full-blown casino.

Tribal representatives deny this, pointing to the various legal restrictions that currently exist, but laws change -- pretty quickly when they are seen to stand in the way of big money.

Does anyone seriously believe that the use of the gambling hall will remain limited to 27 weekends a year? Or that the tribe won't eventually succeed in having the additional 50 acres it already owns in Albany listed as Trust Territory? Or that it won't be able to buy still more land from fleeing neighbors?

Just ask the residents of any of the many towns that have been led down this road. It's happened time and time again in other communities across the nation, and it will happen here.

Albany will be trashed, and along with it the very qualities that make this entire area such a wonderful place to live, and for us to build -- and invest in -- our own communities.

Maine's current governor agrees, as does former tribal governor Sockabasin. Regarding the tribe's first (but certainly not last) casino plan, for Calais, Angus King said: "Gambling (would) damage Maine's most important asset -- its quality of life."

If that casino were to become real, Allen Sockabasin wrote, "the negative effects will reach beyond the land of the Passamaquoddy and the city of Calais for many generations to come."

"Our homeland and our way of life will be no more forever."

Amen.

We cannot allow our own most important asset to be squandered to feed the self-destructive addictions of others.

LURC will accept comments on the bingo-hall proposal through Thursday, Sept. 4. The address and fax number can be found on page four.

OUTRAGED!

To the Editor:

The citizens of Albany are not racist!

We join other residents of Albany who are outraged and insulted by the latest remarks of Lt. Gov. Eric Altwater of the Passamaquoddy Tribe, who implied at the conclusion of the LURC hearings that "racism was one reason Albany residents didn't want the bingo hall."

Anyone who attended the hearing and heard the public testimonies from over 50 concerned Albany and Bethel residents, heard over and over again individual members of the opposition express concern and compassion for the plight of the Passamaquoddy Tribal Members. Many did express views that gains from such a gambling facility might not be the best way to solve the present economic problems encountered by the tribe.

Our opposition is based upon placing a large-scale gambling facility in a rural area known for its natural resources and family outdoor recreation. We are trying to protect the Crooked River, the safety of the pedestrians on our winding roads, and the future of this special area. The proposed location adjacent to the White Mountain National Forest is totally incompatible with traditional land uses in the area. The proposed bingo hall should not be compared to local beano operations. High-states bingo is a much higher level. Although the developers have stated that future plans do not include a casino, we have only to look across the country at other similar operations which began as high-stakes bingo halls, to see the enormous potential for further casino gambling. As government leaders change, so often do laws.

Thank you to the many Bethel residents who joined us in speaking out against a project, not a people. The developers have stated in their application that this project will benefit the town of Bethel economically. We grew up in this area and love Bethel as much as Albany. Bethel is known world-wide for its New England charm and natural surroundings. This project could change this area forever. Are we willing to risk that image which draws people here in the first place?

Time is running out. It is very appropriate for residents of Bethel to also voice their concerns to Land Use Regulation Commission at 22 State House Station, Augusta, ME 04333-0022. Please, we urge you to do so by the Sept. 4 deadline.

Albany residents are concerned about preserving a very special area of the western mountains for all generations to enjoy.

RACISM CHARGE IS A RED HERRING

To the Editor:

As a lifetime resident of Albany and one who attended the LURC meeting on the Passamaquoddy Indians' high-stakes bingo hall, and testified, I am totally offended. Not once did I hear anything remotely racist from any Albany resident. Every testimony I heard pertained to environmental concerns, lack of need for it in the area, and lack of adequate special services such as fire, ambulance and police protection.

I'm sure Sheriff Herrick meant no more by his comment of "one red nickel" than Mr. Geller, a lawyer and vice president of Snake River Financing Ltd., did by calling the bingo hall a "casino."

As far as Theresa Hoffman, a LURC commissioner, asking Albany landowners if they would have opposed Sunday River Ski Resort or Pike Industries' hot-top plant, which by the way used to be the past home of Dragon Cement Products, is totally irrelevant. Both operations are in neighboring towns, and we have no say in their town business.

If the bingo hall's existence in Albany is decided on the facts at these meetings, I think everyone would agree with me on three points: 1) no need for it was ever proven for the area; 2) environmentally it's questionable at best; 3) obviously, local services are not in any position to provide the necessary services needed. A "no" vote is warranted.

I would like to close by thanking Jeff Rosenblatt for putting his heart and soul into this hearing. I only hope his spirit is still in one piece when this is all said and done.

LET'S HEAR FROM THE WMNF ON BINGO PLAN

To the Editor:

At the Land Use Regulatory Commission (LURC) high-stakes bingo hall public hearing on Aug. 20, the primary use of land in Albany, outdoor recreation, received extensive testimony by most people opposed to the proposal. On the other hand, the applicant does not even mention this use when citing other "compatible uses" in the application.

The White Mountain National Forest (WMNF) comprises the bulk of the land in Albany. Amazingly, no testimony was heard from this government agency. I asked Catherine Varney, the LURC project specialist in charge of the file on the project, if any written comment had been received from WMNF. She said no, but she does expect to receive comment before Sept. 5, when the comment period closes, 15 days after the close of the hearing.

Most other governmental authorities have already commented or testified on the application. This silence by the WMNF is the epitome of irresponsibility by the United States government, especially since the office of the WMNF with jurisdiction is located in Bethel, five miles away from the site.

Some of the issues the WMNF needs to comment on are:

What will the impact be on the Crocker Pond Campground, four miles away? Will the two-day-a-week bingo hall employees use the campground for temporary housing, thereby denying access to people who come to use the forest? Will people come not to enjoy the forest, but to gamble?

What will the impact of traffic through the forest be? The shortest route from Gorham, N.H., to the site is via the Flat Road through the forest.

Will the diesel generator be heard from Crocker Pond, or anywhere within the WMNF?

What experience does the U.S. Forest Service have relative to similar nearby gambling uses around the country?

I hereby request the WMNF to submit comment to LURC on the high-states bingo application.

How can the public respond to any responses made in the comment period? They must contact Ms. Varney at LURC to obtain the responses, and comment on them within seven days after the comment period closes, Sept. 12.

(The dates listed here are one day later than those announced at the hearing, per my conversation with chairman Wight at the close of the hearing.)

PUBLISH MORE PIPELINE INFORMATION

To the Editor:

I would like to make reference to Roger Zimmerman's letter and the Bethel Citizen editor's response. Though I can't speak for neither, it seems to me there was a misunderstanding.

Yes, we do appreciate the coverage by The Citizen, but the point Roger was trying to make is that the media has not done what is needed when it comes to the pipeline issue. This pipeline concerns many parts of Maine and other states. There is a wealth of information out there that should be published so people can make an informed decision about this issue. For example, the count of major accidents that CNAP is aware of is up to 10 for this year already. People have not been given the information about the toxins, PCB's and dioxin associated with natural gas -- so much for our cleaner air.

Maybe, as Roger suggested, an interview with our members would be of interest. People have been informed about our defeat in regard to the Planning Board and selectmen, yet nobody knows about the little victories we did achieve with FERC. Many of our fellow citizens aren't aware that thanks to information we supplied to FERC we are all now on the maps and not just those of us that were living here back in the '60's. FERC is now questioning the problems of frost heaves, road washouts, and the clearing of mature trees. Why, because some of us have not just been idly sitting back and have the "take it as it comes" attitude. We are fighting back!

Katlin gone from water district

BETHEL--Don Katlin, who was terminated from his position with the Bethel Water District Monday, plans to appeal the action to the Board of Directors, he said. In a letter to Katlin, BWD superintendent Bob Saunders said that last week Katlin did not inspect, fix and report on the condition of several water hydrants satisfactorily. Saunders said he spoke to Katlin about it, but found over the course of the next two days that the hydrants were still not in satisfactory condition. A switch to a chlorinator was also found to be in incorrect position, Saunders said, which he said could result in unsafe water being delivered to the community. Also cited was a district truck driven by Katlin that Saunders said had been in need of brake work for some time. "Taken together these represent such substantial disregard for the public safety and for the District's needs that you are being terminated immediately," Saunders wrote. Contacted Tuesday, Katlin declined to elaborate on the circumstances surrounding his termination, saying only, "I've been there for 20 years, and have never been called out for anything, except for yesterday."

Traffic an issue for Rite Aid?

BETHEL--A proposal to build a Rite Aid drug store on Route 2 was scheduled for further consideration by the Bethel Planning Board last night (Wednesday). A public hearing on the project is planned for Sept. 10. Blue Hill Management Corp. is proposing the one-story, 11,000-square-foot store. It would provide parking for 40 vehicles. The site is currently occupied by a trailer park. The building would be a Colonial design, with clapboards. An issue regarding the traffic study done for the project could affect the progress of the application, according to planning assistant Nancy Schlieper. The study was done in the summer. But the Department of Environmental Protection is now directing that one be done in the winter to take into account skier traffic, as well as Bethel Station and any potential impact from the proposed Passamaquoddy bingo hall in Albany.

Conservation school auction is Sat.

WOODSTOCK--The Maine Conservation School's sixth annual Auction and Yard Sale will take place Saturday (Aug. 30) at the ball field grandstand in Bryant Pond. The yard sale starts at 9 a.m., the auction at 10 a.m. Proceeds benefit the school, located in Bryant Pond. For more information call (297) 665-2095 or 824-2410.

Gilbert resigns SAD44 board

NEWRY--Director Debbie Gilbert has resigned her seat on the School Board. Selectmen are looking for someone to serve in the position until the annual Town Meeting in March. Anyone interested should contact the Town Office or a selectman.

Get your stickers, folks

NEWRY--Decals bearing the abbreviation "PVT" (private) are now available to be placed on E-911 road name signs on private roads. The free decals may be picked up at the Newry Town Office.

Tower decision is appealed

DENMARK--The Board of Appeals will hold a public hearing Sept. 11 regarding an administrative appeal from citizens regarding a permit granted for a cellular tower on Pleasant Mountain. The permit was approved last month by the Planning Board. Several citizens claim the decision had no legal basis and should be overturned. They cited what they said were eight specific errors made in considering the application for the 190-foot tower on the south-facing slope of the mountain.

Newsletter available for summer folks

PORTLAND--Two attorneys recently launched a "Summer in Maine Law Letter," a free two-page newsletter briefly covering a half dozen legal topics per issue that could be of interest to Maine's out-of-state visitors. Its purpose is to help them become better oriented with state laws that could affect them. The newsletter is being mailed to hundreds of seasonal residents and will be available at a number of businesses throughout central, southern and coastal Maine, as well as on the Internet. For more information contact attorneys Michael Sheehan or Greg Hansel at the law firm of Preti, Flaherty, Beliveau & Pachios (207-791-3000).

LURC OKs pipeline

PORTLAND--The members of the Land Use Regulation Commission have given their unanimous approval to the Portland Natural Gas Transmission System. PNGTS expects to receive approval from the Maine Department of Environmental Protection this fall. Construction of the 292-mile, $302-million project is anticipated to begin in April, with an in-service date of November 1, 1998.

Property tax relief available

AUGUSTA--Applications for the newly expanded Maine Residents Property Tax Program are now available, according to Sen. Norm Ferguson (R-Oxford). The program, frequently referred to as the "circuit breaker program," includes relief for both elderly and non-elderly householders. The elderly program is open to applicants who were at least 62 years old (or 55 if disabled) in 1996 with an income less than $10,300, or $12,700 in a multi-member household. The program provides rebates of up to $1,000 based on 1996 property taxes or rent equivalent. The non-elderly program is open to individuals of any age who have a household income of less than $25,700, or $40,000 for a multi-member household. As in the elderly program, the maximum refund for applicants is $1,000. To qualify for the elderly rebate the applicant's property taxes must have been more than 4 percent of the household's income. For the non-elderly relief, rent must have been more than 27 percent of the household's income.

Tourist season mixed

NEW ENGLAND--This summer's tourist industry is being called good, but not great, according to a report in the Boston Globe. It surpassed last summer -- but not by a lot. Coastal business was reportedly better than that of inland areas. There appeared to be increased numbers of both day tourists and international visitors.

Labor Day travel expected to be up

PORTLAND--An estimated 34 million Americans -- up from last year's 32.9 million -- are expected to take a trip of 100 miles or more during the Labor Day holiday, according to the American Automobile Association. The increase is attributed in part to a strong national economy. Cities and beaches will be the most popular holiday destinations, accounting for 27 and 22 percent of the travel volume, respectively. Other destinations include: town/rural area, 18 percent; lakes, 14 percent; mountain area, 12 percent; state or national parks, 4 percent; and theme/amusement parks, 2 percent.

Surcharge to protect documents

AUGUSTA--New legislation will add a $3 surcharge to the filing of documents with all Maine registries to establish funding for the "restoration, recreation and preservation of documents," according to the Maine association of Registrars of Deeds. Registration fees in Maine are now $8 for the first page and $2 for each additional page. The surcharge is a single charge that is collected per document, regardless of the number of pages. "Many of the records are 60 to 100 years old," said MARD president Jeannine Bergeron. "The book in use in the registries receive constant use and in many cases are not only old but becoming increasingly brittle and in danger of simply falling apart." She said that Maine law requires the registrars of deeds to preserve and maintain the county's records but that, over decades of use and growth in the number of records filed, there has been little or no funding specifically for preservation.

From the Bethel Police log:

ATVers warned off

On Aug. 22 at 11:55 a.m. a caller reported some juveniles had been riding their ATV around her house. She later called back and asked police to talk to them. They had left when the officer arrived. The complainant identified them, and the officer went to their home. They were told to stay away from the residence, and that they would be charged with criminal trespass if they returned.

Thursday, Aug. 21

At 9:05 a.m. a caller notified the Oxford County Sheriff's Office her husband was outside her residence pounding on the door. He reportedly said he was there to pick up his child, and his wife would not open the door. On arrival the officer explained the civil aspect of child custody and how police could not get involved. The husband then said he was leaving without further problem and would seek custody through the court system. The officer gave the complainant the same explanation before clearing the scene.

Friday, Aug. 22

At 10:20 a.m. police received a call from a Kennebec County deputy on his way to Colebrook, N.H. that there was a motorist requesting assistance on Route 2. The Bethel officer found the vehicle was in Hanover, and contacted the Oxford County Sheriff's Department. The officer stood by until a tow truck called by the Sheriff's Office arrived.

Saturday, Aug. 23

At 10:05 p.m. a caller told the Oxford County Sheriff's Office someone was pounding on her window. The subject had left when police arrived. A search of the area was negative.

Sunday, Aug. 24

At 9:25 a.m. the New Hampshire State Police requested police be on the lookout for two vehicles involved in an officer shooting in New Hampshire. About an hour later the call was cancelled because the subjects had been arrested.

At 10:50 p.m. police received a call regarding unwanted subjects. On arrival the complainant said friends and a relative of another subject at her home had arrived and wanted to take him with them. But the subject had changed his mind about going with them, and now his friends and relative would not leave. The subject at the residence assured police he was there of his own free will and did not want to leave. The others then left without incident.

This report highlights points of interest from the Bethel Police Department log, but does not include all reports of police activity. To reach the Bethel Police Department, call 911 in emergency situations, 824-3437 in non-emergencies. An answering machine takes calls when an officer is not in the office.

Bingo hall

existing uses or resources.

The hearing's three sessions provided for testimony by the applicants, the intervenors (represented by attorney and Albany resident Jeff Rosenblatt) and the general public. About 50 members of the public testified. Most opposed the plan.

Opponents were particularly concerned about environmental impact, traffic, noise, provisions for emergency services -- and whether the bingo hall might eventually grow to a full-blown casino on an additional 50 acres owned by the tribe.

Wetland worries

The site of the proposed hall is in an area that floods frequently, DeLuca Hoffman Associates, the engineering firm for the project, has designed two septic fields they say are above the reach of projected 10-year flood waters.

Many speakers disputed that, saying the West Bethel Road, which is nearly the same elevation as the septic fields, often floods with water.

Some said water has also been known to rise over the Crooked River Bridge, which is also on the road and is about a foot higher than the estimated flood level.

"The water was over the bridge in 1986," said part-time resident Harry Preble, an engineer himself.

But 60-year resident Evelyn Kimball, who also testified against the project, said she had not seen the water go over the bridge. It had, she said, gone up to it.

Although those testifying differed on the exact level of the water, most agreed the septic plan was cutting it too close for comfort. They worried seepage from the field might end up in the Crooked River and the rest of the Sebago Lake watershed.

"I think the people know their land, and if they say it's going to flood, it's going to flood," said part-time resident Mary Gainer.

Traffic was another concern. Kathy Bennett lives on the Hunt's Corner Road, known as a shortcut to traffic coming up through Albany

Still time to comment

Public comment regarding the bingo hall proposal will be accepted through Sept. 4. Letters may be mailed to the Land Use Regulation Commission, Department of Conservation, 22 State House Station, Augusta 04333-0022, or faxed to 207-287-7439.

from Norway. She worried her road might become a prime access road for bingo hall patrons.

But DeLuca Hoffman traffic engineer Peter Hedrich doubted many would go that route. The difference in time from using state routes 118/5, he said, was about three minutes. And with no labeling on the Hunt's Corner Road, few people unfamiliar with the area would likely use it.

"I think they will stick with the state route system," he said. The noise and smell from vehicles was another worry. The plan provides for parking for 450 of them, including up to 22 tour buses.

Whether area government could provide emergency services was also the subject of debate. Sheriff Skip Herrick said his department would provide services if called upon, but only if they were entirely paid for by tribal money.

Steve Merrill, chairman of the Oxford County Commissioners, said the commissioners planned to comment eventually on whether they would be able to provide services. They want more information before making a decision, he said. Developers have indicated they would donate money to municipalities to help support any services provided.

Harming or helping business?

There was also concern among those at the hearing about the effect on the area's image. "It would reduce the attractiveness (to visitors)," said Walter Hatch of Bethel, "if it became known as the high-stakes gambling place."

Jane Wardwell of Albany agreed. "It would hurt the outdoor-related businesses already here," she said.

Promoters, on the other hand, have argued the hall would bring business to area restaurants and inns during the off-season. The hall is also expected to create about 50 part-time jobs.

Opponents also said a bingo hall simply wouldn't fit in with existing businesses. While cited LURC's comprehensive plan: "Existing development used to support rezoning should either be of a similar type, use, occupancy, scale and intensity to that being proposed, or a village center with a range of existing uses that the new development zone would complement."

There is nothing currently in Albany on the scale of the bingo hall, she said.

Catherine Varney, project manager for LURC, said the commission could look beyond just Albany itself in considering existing development. "They could make a broader interpretation of area," she said after the hearing.

Representatives for the project did in fact cite Sunday River Ski Resort as an example of other large development in the area. Half a million skiers -- and many cars and tour buses -- visit the rural Newry resort and the Bethel area each year.

With that in mind, Colleen Martineau of Dixfield testified for the applicants in favor of the hall. Buses, she said, bring skiers and leafpeepers. "Why not bring bingo players?" she asked.

They also said the Route 5 area near the site is just the section of Albany residents might set aside for growth if the township were a town.

Francis Dumont of Bethel said he had mixed feelings about the project. He favored the hall for what he said it would do economically for the Passamaquoddy, but said noise from traffic was an issue.

Dumont said he is familiar with the tribe because his wife is Passamaquoddy. He said he is confident the tribe would donate money to nearby towns to help support emergency services.

As for environmental concerns, he said, "They've always done a great job taking care of their land." The tribe, he said, does not clearcut its forest lands.

Dumont also said if any septic problems developed, DEP would shut down the bingo operation -- a costly prospect for DeLuca Hoffman, he said. The engineering firm would therefore make sure their design would prevent such problems, he believed.

Casino on the horizon?

Many residents were worried about whether establishing a bingo hall might give the Passamaquoddy a foot in the door of a full-blown casino.

In written testimony, Rosenblatt quoted news accounts that he said showed the tribe was aiming eventually toward a casino.

Tribal representative Fred Moore told Maine Public Radio in May that "Snake River also has arranged with the Tribe to get first dibs on any future gaming operations the Passamaquoddy may attempt in Maine," according to Rosenblatt.

Rosenblatt also said that in 1994, then Tribal Gov. Cliv Dore was quoted in The Quoddy Tides as saying "that the only two sites the Tribe is considering for a casino are in Calais and in Albany Township."

Rosenblatt has been trying since June to obtain, under the Freedom of Information Act, a copy of a loan agreement between Snake River and the tribe regarding the bingo hall to see if it gives any indication of plans for more activities. But, he said, he has been bounced back and forth between the tribe and the Bureau of Indian Affairs.

At the hearing, tribal council member Wayne Newell said that any thoughts of casino development in Maine ended "when the Boston Court of Appeals ruled against it."

The ruling against such development occurred in 1995, according to Greg Sample, a tribe attorney for the Albany project. The Passamaquoddy did not appeal the case to the Supreme Court.

Rosenblatt was skeptical, arguing the tribe had been denied before, but was able to find other ways around such obstacles.

Sample maintained the impact of any sort of future development was not relevant to the commission's decision on the hall.

Ways of life

Beyond the specific issues were concerns about the threat to the general tranquility and natural beauty of the area. These were repeatedly mentioned by long-time and seasonal residents alike.

"It's one of the best places in the world to get away," said Preble. "Please don't ruin that for all of us in Albany."

Sixty-year resident Alice Kimball, agreed. The bingo hall, she said, "poses a drastic upheaval to our way of living."

But Eric Altwater, Passamaquoddy lieutenant governor, was quick to note the irony of such arguments. He asked those in attendance to think about the effect the arrival of Europeans had on his people 500 years ago.

"That is what I call altering someone's way of life," he said.

Altwater said the Passamaquoddy would like to use profits from the bingo hall to alter their lives for the better, by funding public works and providing social and other services on their Pleasant Point Reservation.

He also said the money could be used "as seed money to entice businesses to locate in our area."

Passamaquoddy Gov. John Stevens said he simply wants to provide a means for his people to make "a decent living."

"What's wrong with a little dignity?" he asked.

He said that of the tribal land statewide, the Albany site was the best prospect for the project.

But many Albany residents said while they sympathized with the Indians' needs, they did not believe it was a reason to support the project.

Varney said Monday the economic situation of the Indian community could possibly factor into the commission's decision. "It could be tied into a need," she said.

The issue of the morality of gambling was also raised by a few opponents at the hearing. It will not be considered relevant in the commission's decision-making process.

The hearing ended with a thinly veiled implication of racism by Altwater. He cited a comment by Herrick, regarding the sheriff's belief that any department services should be paid for by the tribe.

"I don't want this to cost the taxpayers of Oxford County one red nickel," Herrick had said.

Altwater said he was struck by the "red nickel" reference. He was not personally offended, he said, but other tribal members might be.

Altwater also cited a comment by a resident that implied racism was one reason some in Albany opposed the hall.

Altwater's comments angered Rosenblatt. "This is offensive," he said.

Herrick apologized later, saying he had no malicious intent in using the term.

Correction: An article in last week's Citizen regarding E-911 naming of the Bird Hill Road should have said the section of the road originating in Greenwood continues with that same name into Bethel.

River

representative Jim Chandler brought a map to the meeting that demonstrated the banks of Sunday River had been shifting years before Sunday River Ski Resort was a gleam in anyone's eye. Chandler had plotted the course of the river in 1943, 1968, and 1991. At all the bends in the river, his plots showed continual shifting of the river channel over the years. The straight sections of the river showed little variance over the same time period.

With five representatives from Sunday River Ski Resort and American Ski Company, including Sunday River general manager Dan Seme, present at the meeting, their recognition of the significance of landowner concerns was obvious. Burt Mills, senior vice president of mountain operations (ASC), reiterated that the additional machine-made snowpack at Sunday River does not increase the volume of runoff into the river.

Since the snow melts at the same rate regardless of whether it is machine-made or natural, the additional snowpack of machine-made snow instead lengthens the snow-melt season but does not mean heavier runoff.

Chandler, along with Peter Marchinuk, district conservationist at the U.S. Department of Agriculture Natural Resources Conservation Service in South Paris, directed the meeting and, after listening to landowners' concerns and frustrations for nearly two hours, steered all toward developing a plan of action that was realistic within the existing regulatory framework.

Since any actions taken within the channel of the river, as well as along the banks, are subject to the Maine Department of Environmental Protection Shorelands Zoning and Flood Plan regulations, the USEPA Clean Water Act, and potentially Maine Department of Inland Fish and Wildlife regulations, Chandler offered his assistance in applying for a grant to study the situation.

Funded under the USEPA Clean Water Act and administered through MEDEP, a 604(b) grant will provide funds to study the situation in the Sunday River with the results of the study directed to taking appropriate actions to moderate the erosion while still protecting the waterway.

Chandler expects to have the application process for this grant completed by Sept. 15, with word of whether the award has been made by November. If the 604(b) grant is received, it must be implemented within one year.

Chandler will also begin looking into the possibility of applying for a 319 grant as well. While it is a much longer process with application not even starting until this winter, the 319 grant would provide funds for implementation of actions recommended from the result of the study.

The next step for area residents is the formation of a steering committee for the group. Several attendees, including Sunday River general manager Dan Seme, indicated they are willing to serve on this committee.

Chandler is hoping to see a balance of interests among steering committee members, and others interested in serving on the committee may do so by contacting Chandler at OCSWCD (743-7019 or 743-3956).

Landowners were also asked to document the erosion problems they have experienced with words and pictures, as this may help when the 604(b) grant application is reviewed. Landowners can send their descriptions and/or photographs to Chandler at OCSWCD, 1 Main Street, South Paris, ME 04281.

The next meeting of landowners and concerned citizens will be held Wednesday, Sept. 3, 7 p.m., at the White Cap Lodge at Sunday River Ski Resort and is open to everyone.

Chandler plans to invite a MEDEP representative to this meeting to discuss the applicable regulations and how to work within them. The possibility of organizing a volunteer river clean-up day to remove debris from the river will also be discussed.

The 28th session of the Cynthia Mason Round Robin Bridge will begin on Sept. 1 with 20 couples playing.

shape the truck is in, and they still wanted to do away with the (fire truck) account," he said. "A majority of people in this town really don't want to buy a fire truck."

In order to save money, townspeople voted several years ago to do away with putting money aside for a truck.

Dixon said he at least wanted to make the situation known to selectmen.

Mills then asked if it would make more sense to make the building accommodate the current truck -- or any other the town might buy in the future.

Dixon agreed that it would. "It's very difficult to find one (a truck) that would fit," he said.

A proposal to enlarge the station was turned down by voters several years ago.

The selectmen decided to talk to people in East Andover to find out how their insurance is affected by fire coverage, and see if they want to improve the department's resources in that part of town.

The selectmen might then meet with Dixon and other fire officials to discuss a possible budget proposal to enlarge the station or rebuild it on other land.

Lodging members are reminded of the fall foliage packaging opportunity that the chamber will be marketing in the Boston Globe and the Maine Sunday Telegram's Fall Foliage Travel Section. Please get back to us as soon as possible on this.

The chamber is coordinating a full calendar for the pre-holiday time period, from Thanksgiving to Christmas, to be included in a holiday brochure. All community organizations and businesses who plan to have an activity open to the public during that time period are encouraged to call the office (824-2282) by Sept. 5.

Plans are underway for the Bethel Winter Festival, Jan. 10 and 11, 1998. There will be more forthcoming on this in the coming months and a chance for all organizations and businesses to be involved.

The Bethel area will be well represented once again at the Eastern States Exposition, from Sept. 12-28 in West Springfield, Mass. Nearly one million people come through the Maine building during this 17-day fair.

TRI-TOWN RESCUE FUNDRAISER

Tri-Town Rescue has received two grants to help with the purchase of two defibrillator/monitors. The USDA Rural Development Corporation will donate 35 percent of the total cost, or $6,650 toward the purchase. Prudential Corporation Helping Hearts Grant will donate $2,000 for the purchase. A total of $8,890 has been raised since starting the fundraising campaign last summer.

Tri-Town is within $1,500 of the purchase goal and plans a Coin Toss Toll Booth Sunday, Aug. 31, from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. on Route 26 in Bryant Pond. In addition, the auxiliary is planning a public turkey supper Saturday, Sept. 6, from 5 to 6:30 p.m. at the West Paris Grange Hall. Any donations will be gratefully accepted.

The Rev. and Mrs. Raymond Bradley and grandson of Peacedale, R.I., recently spent the day with Mrs. Doris Brown. Other recent visitors at the Brown home were Ramona Filiault and Jodel Usher of Westbrook, and Dixie Lea Thayer of Bangor.

Guests of Stan Howe at his Broad Street home have been Thomas Mitchell, Culver City, Calif., Robert Albota of Ottawa, Ontario, Canada, and James Dearborn of Buxton.

Telstar senior Martha Grover, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Grover of Mason, recently returned from three weeks spent in France as a student in the Rotary Exchange program. She stayed at the home of Melanie Avaril, the French student who had spent the previous three weeks at the Grover home. The Avaril family lives in La Grande Motte on the Mediterranean coast, and Martha visited many interesting places, including Roman ruins and French palaces.

Ethelyn McMillin Caillouet arrived Aug. 21 at Auburn by air-ambulance and was transferred to the Veteran's Home in South Paris, where she is now a patient. She suffered a stroke four months ago in Louisiana where she lived near her children. Her daughter, Brenda Manuel of Iota, La., is staying with Kay McMillin for three weeks. Ett would love to receive cards from her many friends.

Mark and Betsy Davis Retallick of Beverly, Mass., and sons Garth and Kyle spent a long week at the Davis Camp at Songo.

The Gorman House on Mason Street is under contract with AVA Builders, Tony Andrews, for complete renovations and restoration. Rebecca and Tom Zicarelli purchased the property and are moving here from Brookline, Mass. Rebecca was from Canton and Tom works at the Weather Observatory on Mt. Washington. They have two sons, Joe is 11 years old and in the sixth grade, Danny is 9 years old and in the fourth grade. At present they are at Eden Ridge awaiting completion of the project.

Kenneth and Gwyneth Bohr and brother Richard and Georgette Bohr of Cleveland, Ohio, have returned from a 10-day canoe trip with "Maine Explorations" conducted by Maine guides Bonnie Pooley and Mac Davis. The trip covered the Androscoggin Watershed, all through the Rangeley Lakes. There were eight people making up the entire party.

Guests this week at the home of Jonathan and Kathy Goldberg are grandparents Norma and Leon Goldberg and Aunt Pam, and cousins Dylan and Roxanne of New Jersey.

The Bethel House

The Rev. Deborah Jenks of the Locke Mills Community Church went to the Rumford Community Home and held a church service for the residents on Sunday, Aug. 17. Robert Cole of Bethel and Charlotte Cole of Greenwood also attended, and Charlotte played her guitar for the singing. They all visited with Amy Hanscom while there.

Shannon Sumner was at the Bethel House on Thursday doing some maintenance work.

Torinne Pease and Tim Fournier of Coastal Management, Portland, were at the Bethel House. Tim did maintenance work and Torinne called on residents there.

Peter Sawyer's name was omitted from the list attending the Sawyer reunion on the 10th at the camp of Mr. and Mrs. James Paine in Newry. Peter is also a descendant of Charles William and Annie Maria Dunham Sawyer.

Paul Bartlett visited his mother, Helena Bartlett, at the Bethel House on Friday.

Robert Cole called on Ruth Cummings at the Bethel House on Saturday and brought her string beans. She had enough to share some with a couple neighbors.

The Rev. and Mrs. Nathan Seckinger of Cherry Hill, N.J., had planned to come to Maine with their sons last week, but their son Ethan fell and broke his arm in two places, so they were unable to come as planned. Ethan will need a lot of therapy on his arm. The Rev. Seckinger was pastor of the Bethel Alliance Church for six years before going to Apalachin, N.Y., and last June the family moved to Cherry Hill, N.J.

Olga Morgan was in Lewiston last week to see her eye doctor.

Ben Conant was guest speaker at the Bethel Alliance Church on Sunday, Aug. 24.

West Bethel

by Karen Jordan

Eva and Aaron Paul and Nancy Morgan are attending college at USM in Portland full-time this fall. Classes start on Tuesday, Sept. 2. There are a number of other young people attending school this year. Sarah Stowell is returning to Farmington for her junior year, majoring in psychology, and Rachel Stowell is attending Lyndon State in Lyndonville, Vt., as a freshman majoring in graphics communication.

I spoke with Brian Stowell via telephone and he told me how sorry he was to miss Arthur Head's funeral but was comforted to read about it in last week's Citizen. Brian spoke about being a part of this small community and how it has enriched his life to return to the community and the importance of coming together again and again at these necessary events.

Sunday afternoon, I squeezed into my running clothes, dusted off my sneakers and headed up Barker Road toward the Flat Road with Alfred Merrill's big hill as my destination goal. By the time I reached the end of Barker Road I wondered how I would make the four-mile trip, as my knees were already screaming for me to stop. I decided that maybe I could make it as far as the G & T Store, so I continued along at a brisk walk (the running clothes are for looks and to aid my psyche). When I passed the store, George (Crockett), waved and making a good show of it I trooped on feeling rejuvenated. By this time I had forgotten the fateful knee and climbed the ever-so-gradual hill toward my old neighborhood on the Flat Road. Whenever I walk this stretch of road (between the corner store and my family home), I remember the walk to school each day till I was old enough to go to the big school in Bethel. Chuckie Smith, Bozo Merrill and Mike Gordon were my walking companions in those days. I could tell you stories about our adventures along that road, but not now, another time.

The sound of crickets and grasshoppers along the way enhanced my memories of school-time treks. I have to admit I hated this time of year as a kid because I hated school and the thought of summer vacation ending. We kids on the Flat Road spent our summers swimming and biking in Pleasant Valley and on Sparrowhawk Mountain. In those days there were no developments and housing projects in West Bethel. We walked the old logging roads, ran through fields of asparagus, and sat in the tops of the pine trees swaying and dreaming about what to do tomorrow.

I continued walking with these pleasant thoughts in my head, when I realized I was nearing the Clough residence and could see Emerson and Adaline out in their little orchard picking and spraying the dozen or so trees there. My direction automatically changed, and I found myself standing on their lawn discussing it really doesn't matter what. Adaline had a small pail of Paula Reds in her right hand as she walked toward me to greet me and offer me a few of the ripe, tasty spheres. I took one apple to satisfy my thirst and after a quick exchange and a few pangs of guilt I hurried along the lawn back to my mission of getting to Alfred's hill.

Bubba Blaisdell's reworked pond in the hollow beyond the first hill looked refreshing and inviting but I walked on. Beyond Bubba's place I passed by Raccoon Corner and could see the big hill looming ahead of me. This is the place I always thought God lived when I was a crumb-snatcher. I gladly climbed my hill to gaze at the magnificent views of fields and mountains which renew my spirits each time I return. I was not disappointed at this visit and decided to continue to Reggie Gilbert's farm before heading back to the village. On my way back I stopped at the Clough's to collect the promised apples and drink a bit of their tap water. While there, I sat and looked through family pictures of Theron, Cindy, Rosie and Connie. We all played together as part of the Flat Road Gang and it was amazing to see their children all grown and even a grandchild. All of the Clough children have moved away from West Bethel and work in other towns. Adaline and Emerson were my second parents when I was little and continue to remain my good friends.

East Bethel

by Nancy Mercer

Polly Smith attended Linda Olson's birthday party on Aug. 23 at Linda's home. The last summer service at the East Bethel Church was attended on Aug. 24.

Mariah Kimball, granddaughter of Paul and Charlotte Kimball, spent Aug. 23 with them.

Albert Foster has been working in his garden and has been putting a lot of produce into the freezer.

Dick and June Stearns took Albert Foster out to supper at the restaurant in Locke Mills. They enjoyed the meal.

Albert Foster visits Leland Coolidge whenever he can. He drives over on his cub.

Linda Hertell-Hopkins and her daughter, Jassamine, of Auburn, visited Arthur Hertell on Aug. 23.

Carol Poirier and her family were out driving around the entire Bethel area on Aug. 23 and 24. They noticed that Bethel will be having natural gas pipelines on the east and west sides of the town.

Stan Usovick of PNGTS says his children play 100 feet from a natural gas pipeline at 800 p.s.i. in Peabody, Mass. This is very different than eight to 60 feet away and 1,400 p.s.i. in a 12-inch pipe. PNGTS and FERC have not even considered the "industrial corridor," Route 2 across the river.

People, there is still time to write to FERC. The address is: Federal Energy Regulatory Commission, Office of the Secretary, 888 First Street, Washington, DC 20426, Docket #CP96-249-000.

South Woodstock

by Andrea Wing

Congratulations to Randy and Rachel Wilday on the birth of their baby boy, Caleb James, born on Aug. 10. Maternal grandparents are George and Marianne Gould of Bethel, and paternal grandparents are Larry and Elaine Wilday of South Woodstock.

The descendants of Richard Robertson and Susan Clements held a family reunion at the home of Nick and Marta Clements this past weekend. There were 75 persons present; the one traveling the most miles came from Texas. Nick and Marta's children spent some extra time with them and attended the reunion. Their children are David and Audrey Clements and girls from Birmingham, Ala.; Bruce and Cindy Clements and daughter from Weare, N.H.; and Eric Clements and Yvette Laro from Concord, N.H. A combination birthday party was held during the stay for Nick and Marta's grandchildren, Sarah, 2, Peggy, 1, and Carolyn, 3. Their birthdays are quite close together so it was decided to celebrate while they were all here.

Josh Appleby is going to be in the Little League-Bambino competition in Cooperstown, N.Y., this weekend. There are 13 boys from Maine attending, and they will play teams from other states during the several days' stay. The name of the team is Maine Coasters. All the boys attending will stay at Cooperstown and will have their names put in the Baseball Hall of Fame with a picture of each team. Josh is 12 years old and is in the seventh grade at Telstar Middle School. Josh's father, Al Appleby, will be attending the games along with Josh's grandfather, Pete Appleby. It is quite an honor to be chosen, and we are very happy and congratulate him for his good baseball ability.

Ellsworth and Joyce Hathaway had a lobster and clam cookout at their home last week. Their daughter and husband, Karen and Dennis Fortier, from Berlin, N.H., and granddaughter, Amy, and friend, Matt, and granddaughter, Heather, also were there. Amy attends Susquehanna University and Heather attends the University of New Hampshire. They hadn't gotten together for a while and had a wonderful visit.

We are sorry to hear of the accident involving Richard Felt and Lucy Robbins. I hear they were seriously hurt. Hopefully, they will have a full recovery soon.

Larry Billings, curator, Woodstock Historical Society, reports that History Day featured vintage cars, a flea market, and other events. Thanks to Helvi Cary for organizing the event and to all who helped. The celebration was well attended. A video was made of the proceedings, and it will be next meeting's program.

Members organized a flea market, food sale, crafts, museum tours, and children's games. Flowers decorated the museum. Thanks to all who helped and to visitors for attending. Dr. Allen Chase also gave some items to the museum. It was quite a successful celebration.

East Stoneham

by Eleanor Nelson

Hi readers. The Rescue beano games are over now, and they had a supper on Saturday night, Aug. 16, with a small crowd. This is for a good cause, and we all should support them as much as we can.

Marilyn and Dick Jones, along with Guy McAlister, Donald Farr, Oniel and Estelle Heath all went to Thomas Point Beach in Brunswick on Saturday, Aug. 16, to represent the McAlister/McAllister Clan at the 19th Annual Highland Scottish Games. They were joined there by Stan and Fran Anderson, daughter Lisa, and granddaughter Katherine, also Robbie Lagueux. Estelle's sister and brother-in-law spent some time with them during the day. There were lots of Scottish attire and pageantry. The sounds of bagpipes were in the air throughout the day.

Frances Grant and I were pleased to learn that our nephew and wife, Raymond and Misty Yates-Files, have a new baby girl, born Aug. 11, 1997. She weighed 6 pounds, 14 ounces, and her name is Emma Iris. Everyone is doing fine.

Carolyn Heino has been doing some work for Bishop George Cadigan in Lovell.

Darlene Dunn has been doing some work at the Stan Nelson house this week.

Sharon Traish, Jaffer and Nawal, from Belmont, Mass., have been at their cottage at Lake Keowaydin this past week. They spent a couple days with Kitty Nelson, Molly and Matthew, and Carole Nelson at Cranberry Island.

Recently, I had a nice chat with Kate Flynn, who is in Oregon at this writing.

On Saturday, a birthday party was held for Peter Fox at his home, with many relatives and close friends attending.

Also on Saturday, a birthday party was held for me here, with lobsters, etc., and cake and ice cream.

John and Joan Grover have had new siding put on their house and barn. It looks good.

Lawrence and Mildred Dadmun of Damariscotta were at their home here one day this past week.

The Stoneham Planning Board met at the Fire Station meeting room on Tuesday night to take care of a few permits. There were six members present.

Albert and Carole Nelson were at the Nelson camp at Wilson's Mills a couple days this past week.

Jeannie Horton tended the church Bake Sale last Saturday. Thanks, Jeannie. The Bake and Thrift sales are still on at the Church Saturdays from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Book sales and the $1-a-bag sale on clothing is still on. Bargains galore.

North Newry

Warren and Ann Hunter, brother and sister-in-law of Eleanor Davis; her nieces, Christy Martinge, Anne Cameron and Alex Martinge; her great-niece, Ashley Finney, all from Wichita Falls, Texas, spent a delightful two weeks' vacation at the Norman and Eleanor Davis' residence recently.

Happy Birthday to Sue Wight on the 26th, Chris Toti on the 23rd, Carl Toti on the 30th, and Sue Cross on Sept. 2. "May all your birthdays be happy to such an extent that you'll feel that they were the nicest you have ever spent."

Karlene Bachelder, Betsy Clark,

Gil Seeley, Eleanor Davis, Doris Parent, and Dot Dore (Betsy's mother was a guest bowler) all went to the Oxford Lanes in Rumford one day last week. It was a tough fight all the way to glory. On the first string, Gil was high, beating Betsy by five pins. On the second string, Karlene was high, beating Gil by five pins. And on the third string, Betsy and Gil tied, but Karlene beat them by eight pins. So on the overall scores Karlene was high on the singles, beating Gil by two pins and she was also high on the triples, beating Gil by three pins. Of the "Righties," Doris was high on the singles and triples. Karlene had one strike and two spares. Gil had one spare. All went to lunch at Teena's and did some shopping.

The Windy Valleys Sno-Mobile Club will meet Sept. 2 at the Warming Hut at 7 p.m.

Services were held at the Newry Community Church on Sunday morning, Aug. 17, at 9 a.m., with Pastor Rodney Hanscom at the pulpit and daughter Nancy at the organ. The Message of the Day was: "Contentment with God," from Psalm III:3 -- "His work is honorable and gracious; and his righteousness endureth forever."

Ms. Dot Dore of New Hampshire spent the week of the 17th with her daughter and son-in-law, Betsy and Dick Clark, here in North Newry, and took in some bowling and other neighborhood spots of interest. She is now back home resting. See you again sometime, Dot.

Good Neighbor Day is not till Sept. 14, but my good neighbors are bringing me all kinds of goodies from their gardens. Thank you so much, and God bless you all.

Greenwood City

by Colista Morgan

There have been clouds and more clouds the last several days, but on a night between, stars winked into view. The moon tried its slow magic groping for the pine tops with gleaming fingers.

Overst Mountain was more crouching than a towering guardian and somehow seer. I near at hand and more companionable.

Fireflies lit their lap-out back to show me the way to bed. I snuggled down with the expectation of a good night's sleep. But this was one of those nights that I didn't. I heard the owl hoot, the ducks rocking in the pond, chattering with old friends, and twigs snap outside my window. Then sometime beyond midnight with the moon spraying through the window a breeze whispered from the mountains and swept me to sleep. But before morning I heard a surf of sound; rain softly hitting the roof. I could hardly believe it. I slept again until breakfast time. It turned into a good day, clear and bright during the morning, with just a bit of mist over the pond, early. That burned away and the sky turned to a lovely blue. There was a little rustle in the leaves, soft and gentle.

By afternoon the temperature reached 30 degrees. I puttered around out-of-doors, lazily doing nothing very important but enjoying myself.

I can't walk off into the forest any more, but wished that I could. No matter how often repeated it doesn't lose its charm to a true lover of the woodland.

There is beauty all around us/Anywhere that we may be/From the mountains to the valleys/From the desert to the sea/Every sight and sound can teach us/It has something good to give/Making this world of promise/And each day a joy to live.

The daughters of Rena Curtis spent the weekend with their mother.

David, Sally and Mary were at the farm on Sunday. It was a big relief to see David get around again even with a walker. Both David and Sally are better.

My niece, Lucy Wilcox, of West Sumner visited me on Tuesday afternoon. I also had another visitor, Jean Schafer, a friend who vacations in Greenwood two weeks each summer. I always look forward to seeing her.

What a nice rain we had Thursday and Friday nights -- too late for berry crops but a big help to the woodlands and late gardens.

I returned home Wednesday noon from a nine-day visit with my daughter and family at The Cape in Otisfield. One night she entertained two guests from the Seeds of Peace Camp -- a high school geography teacher from Palestine and a minister of education from Israel.

Visitors here early last week were my brother and wife, Leroy and Bertha Hunter from Unity, on their way home from a weekend camping trip at Stowe, Vt., to attend an antique car rally. He drove his '32 Chevrolet coupe. Other visitors were Mrs. Mary Ellen Connolly and son Nickolas and two grandchildren of New Jersey, her son, Patrick, and his wife and two children of Falmouth.

The Strout family from Waterboro and the Coleman family from Portland visited with "Nana" Wentzell and took in the Sudbury Canada Days.

Judy and Huey and daughter, Irene Coleman, and Courtney Strout stayed overnight and enjoyed a day of swimming and visiting Sunday.

Other visitors at the Wentzell cottage have been Harold and Elaine, Eichel from Gorham, N.H., and David Eichel and Amy Clark from Salt Lake City, Utah.

David Whitney from Dover, N.H., stopped in to visit his great aunt, Millie Wentzell.

A good traveler in life enjoys the journey, not just the destination.

Locke Mills

by Lorraine Mills

Visitors at the home of Andy and Lorraine Larson were Lorraine's aunt, Leona Flint, of Bethel and her son and wife, Frank and Suzie Flint, of Fairfield, Conn. Lorraine's daughter and son-in-law, Marcia and Jon Smith, made an overnight visit, as they made a flying three-day visit to relatives in the area. They have since returned to Presque Isle.

I had someone ask me the other day why there were no more Poochie stories. Alas, Poochie is getting almost civilized. He did get out on the other evening, but he didn't go any further than Ken Wakefield's driveway and happily climbed into the car for a piece of hot dog. He loves hot dogs, of course, since they aren't good for him. Dogs must like Ken's drive, as there was another beagle in his drive, but this time it wasn't Poochie. I have finally found a rawhide bone that Lucy can't eat up in one day. It must be about two feet long. She has managed to eat one end of it in about six weeks. I think she's trying to hold out for a smaller one.

Saturday, Lorraine and Andy Larson attended a family picnic and barbecue at the home of his cousin, Fred Peterson and wife Ellie on Center Street in Lewiston, in honor of their daughter Kathy's birthday and his father, Fritz Peterson's 95th birthday, which is the 31st of August. Fritz's other son, Conrad Peterson, from Pennsylvania was also in attendance. Since Andy's nickname was acquired in Washington state, I had to get used to calling him Donald again. I've barely learned to call him Andy. But he says that's not too bad since his cousin Conrad was always called Sonny and now is called Pete. Anyhow, there were about 40 in all including all the grands and great-grands. The oldest attendee was of course Fritz, and the youngest one was a 15-month-old charmer by the name of Kathryn. I suggested to Norma, Fritz's present wife, that if she has them all straight, which in 25 years I hope she has, she might help me get them all straight, which may be some task if they all like nicknames as Donald and Conrad do.

Sunday, Andy and I attended another picnic and barbecue following church services at the Church of the Nazarene. It was held at the home of Juanita and Phil Korhonen in Bryant Pond in honor of former pastor John Clayton, who was pastor here just 120 years ago. Others attending besides Phil, Juanita, and two of their grandchildren, Pastor Clayton and Andy and I were Gerry and Joe Shimamura, Jim and Mary Cobb, Becky Cobb Lawrence and Donna Lawrence Brown (Donna got married just a week before Andy and I), Anita Mason with three of her grandchildren or nieces or nephews, what ever the case may be, Josie Greenwood and a daughter of her grandson's girlfriend, Kathy

Moses Mason House

All members and friends of the Bethel Historical Society are reminded that the 32nd annual meeting will be held on Thursday, Sept. 4, in the meeting room of the Dr. Moses Mason House. A 6:30 p.m. potluck supper will precede the meeting. Anyone attending the supper should bring a casserole/hot dish, salad or dessert to share. Following the supper the business meeting will include election of officers and trustees, the presentation of the 12th annual Marjorie MacArthur Noll Volunteer Service Award to an outstanding volunteer, announcement of some new honorary members, and progress reports on the annual fund and capital campaigns. Following the meeting portion of the meeting, David Richards, Ph.D., assistant director, Margaret Chase Smith Library, will speak on "Margaret Chase Smith (1897-1995): A Centennial Appraisal." The meeting is open to anyone interested and the public is cordially invited to attend.

The 1997 Annual Fund Campaign has passed the $4,300 level from over 180 donors. Others wishing to join this growing list are encouraged to make tax-deductible contributions in any amount and send them to the society at P.O. Box 12, Bethel, ME 04217-0012.

Life member Ann Knowles of Yarmouth organized a discussion of the work of Pulitzer Prize winning writer and biographer Wallace Stegner at the Dr. Moses Mason House meeting room on Aug. 20.

The summer issue of the society's quarterly, "The Bethel Courier," will be out soon with a commemoration of the NTL's 50th anniversary in Bethel and an article on the history of Philbrook Street. Anyone wishing a complimentary issue should write the society at the above address.

On Saturday, Aug. 23, the society hosted the summer meeting of the Maine Society, Sons of the American Revolution, meeting along with the Society of Colonial Wars, and the Society of Founders and Patriots. Honored were Glen Skillin, a Maine bibliographer and Ben Conant, a South Paris local historian. Bethel History Society life member Ted Chadbourne was inducted into the SAR.

and Chuck Mason and grandson Nicolas, Kathryn and Cleve Lovejoy and her mother, Fannie Cummings; Lee and Bonnie Learned; Rhonda Mitchell; and Albert and Thelma Judkins. (I hope I got them all.) Pastors Roland Lord and Linwood Hanson also stopped by. Oh, yes, Eddie Gammon and his wife also attended. I knew I'd forget somebody.

Western Maine Community Action's Tri-County W.I.C.
(Women, Infants, & Children Special Supplementary Foods Program)

Is pleased to announce the opening of a permanent office at 10 Cottage Street, Norway. The office is currently opened on Monday and Friday and will be opening 4 days per week beginning in September.

The program is currently accepting applicants in the Oxford County area. To see if you qualify for the program, please contact Tri-County W.I.C., 10 Cottage Street, Norway, ME 04268, 744-0416.

The W.I.C. Program is designed to provide basic nutritious foods to pregnant women, nursing mothers, and children under five years of age, who because of financial difficulty may be at medical or nutritional risk. W.I.C. also provides the nutrition education necessary for the proper use of these foods.

Because children do so much of their growing before birth and during their first five years, they are most likely to lack some essential nutrients at this time. Pregnant women and nursing mothers also need extra nutrients so that their babies will be healthy and to insure that their own bodies remain in top condition.

The W.I.C. Program provides to women and children over one year old: milk, cheese, cereal, eggs, juice, peanut butter & dried legumes. Women exclusively breastfeeding can also receive tuna fish & carrots. Young non-breast-fed infants receive an iron fortified formula, an older infant may receive cereal and juice as well.

Income guidelines are such that working and non-working families are encouraged to apply. You can call 744-0416 to enquire about the income guidelines.

The Special Supplemental Food Program for Women, Infants & Children is open to all eligible persons regardless of race, sex, color, creed, age, political belief, national origin, or handicap.

Western Maine Community Action is a nonprofit agency providing services to eligible people in Franklin, Androscoggin & Oxford Counties. Services include health services, nutritional services, housing, fuel assistance, weatherization, Head Start, Family Development & job training services. Western Maine Community Action is a United Way Agency.

Deadly Facts about Domestic Abuse

In 1995, ten out of the twenty murders committed in the state of Maine were Domestic Abuse Related. That's fifty percent!

Hitting, kicking, pushing, yelling and forcing sex are all forms of abuse. It is never acceptable and nobody deserves to be abused. No excuses!

Someone who threatens or assaults you is breaking the law. It doesn't matter what you "think" may have caused the abuse. There is no acceptable reason for it.

Abuse doesn't hurt just one person, it hurts the whole family.

Call now before these become the deadly facts in your family. Someone will help you who truly understands.

Diabetes And The Kidneys

By George A. Porter, M.D.
President, American Kidney Fund

(NU)—Over 200,000 Americans suffer from chronic kidney failure. Kidney failure means that the kidneys have lost their ability to filter waste products and excess fluid from the blood. The individual then must have regular dialysis treatments or a kidney transplant in order to survive. Approximately one-third of these patients lose their kidney function because of diabetes.

Diabetes is a disease where the body does not produce enough insulin or cannot utilize the insulin properly. Since insulin regulates the metabolism of sugar, this can result in high levels of sugar in the blood.

Having too much sugar in the blood can damage the small blood vessels in the body. When the blood vessels in the kidneys are damaged, they can no longer filter the blood effectively. This condition is called diabetic nephropathy.

Not all diabetics develop kidney failure. About 30 to 40 percent of people with Type I (juvenile onset) diabetes and 10 to 30 percent of those with Type II (adult onset) diabetes will eventually have kidney failure.

Although it has not been rigorously proven, it is commonly accepted that controlling the blood sugar can prevent or delay the complications of diabetes including kidney failure. It is also important to keep blood pressure under control and to treat any urinary tract infections quickly.

The progression of diabetic nephropathy can be slowed if it is diagnosed early. One of the first signs is albuminuria, or protein in the urine. Once this is found, the doctor may prescribe a special blood pressure medicine (CEI) and a low protein diet in order to slow the advance of kidney damage. This should be done with the advice of a dietitian.

If you have diabetes, you should:

- Maintain blood sugar and blood pressure as close to normal as possible.
- Get regular medical check-ups, including blood and urine tests.
- Know the warning signs of kidney disease—swelling of parts of the body; lower back pain; burning sensation during urination; bloody or coffee-colored urine; high blood pressure; change in the frequency of urination.

The American Kidney Fund can be reached at 1-800-638-8299.

Foot Pain Should Never Be 'Normal'

(NU) - The most common foot problem experienced by Americans is pain or discomfort, followed by corns and calluses. That's the finding of "Attitudes Toward Foot Care," a survey conducted for the American Podiatric Medical Association. General foot pain can be attributed to types of activity, ill-fitting footwear or be an indicator of a more serious health problem. For that reason, foot pain should never be considered "normal." For information on foot health and care, call the APMA at 1-800-FOOTCARE. (News USA)

Teeth You Save May Be Your Own

(NU)—People lose teeth for all sorts of reasons, from poor oral health to sports accidents.

But whatever the cause, teeth should be replaced as soon as possible for health and cosmetic reasons, says Howard Strasser, D.M.D.

When teeth are lost, adjacent teeth change position, growing up or down into the space or shifting to fill the opening. Either way, the out-of-place teeth may be more susceptible to decay. And they can cause bite problems resulting in headaches, gum disease or jaw pain.

It's the back teeth, with their multiple broad roots, that support the bite, Strasser says. When many back teeth are missing, front teeth, with only one rounded root, take over the back teeth's function of chewing food. Then, front teeth tend to wear down quickly, becoming flat and short. In some cases the front teeth space out.

Look Good, Feel Good

Partial dentures are one way of filling in the spaces from a lost tooth. But partial dentures need just as much care as natural teeth, because they, too, are susceptible to plaque and calcium deposit buildup. Retainers worn by people with braces also attract plaque.

"To make sure they don't become ugly—that they don't pick up stains, calcium deposits and mouth odor," Strasser recommends using a denture cleaning product like the Rembrandt Denture Whitening System, which removes those calcium deposits.

Strasser also recommends that people see their dentist twice a year and not wear the appliances 24 hours a day, because gums need time to rest.

An associate professor of operative dentistry at the University of Maryland Dental School in Baltimore, Strasser lectures around the world on aesthetics. He has written a guide, What You Should Know About Dentures and Their Care, for the one in six adults in the United States who wear dentures.

Back Seat Riders, Is Your Child One?

(NAPS)—President Clinton has proposed new regulations to standardize child safety seat installation in vehicles. The American Academy of Pediatrics and Allstate Insurance Company support this proposal. A universal system would eliminate confusion over the installation of car seats—confusion that often leads to improper use and tragedy.

WALK YOUR WAY TO FITNESS

Walking is exercise that almost anyone can do regularly, even those with busy schedules. You can easily walk to work or even walk on your lunch break. You won't need a long warm-up, other ideas of clothes or a shower. Other ideas are walking in a local mall, many malls are climate controlled, which is a great atmosphere for people that are sensitive to pollen or pollutants.

Walking is a low-impact form of exercise. Blisters (usually from ill-fitting shoes) or shin splints (pain in the lower front leg, usually caused by poor circulation and impact), are about the only injuries you risk. The rolling weight from heel to toe that goes with walking involves less impact on the feet and skeletal system than running.

Beginners should start walking briskly after a short warm-up of stretching. Walk on alternate days and gradually increase your pace and lengthening your stride. Your goal should be a continuous brisk walk for 20-60 minutes.

As your body starts getting stronger and used to the walking, a way to burn more calories is to carry handweights. Pumping them as you walk will give your upper body a workout. Have fun and remember stretch before you start walking to prevent some minor muscle aches.

All Kids Safe
ride • home • play • • •

In the interim, The American Academy of Pediatrics and Allstate remind adults to take safety measures every time they travel with a small child in the car.

- The back seat of a vehicle is the safest place for children of any age to ride.
- Infants in rear-facing car safety seats should never be placed in the front seat of a car with passenger-side air bags.
- Infants should ride in a rear-facing safety seat until they are at least 20 pounds and one-year old.
- Children who weigh approximately 40 pounds and have outgrown convertible seats should use a booster seat.

Ask your Allstate agent for a free Family Shopping Guide To Car Seats and The One-Minute Car Seat Safety Check-Up. These materials provide valuable information on car seat models, proper installation and safety. Ask your pediatrician for more information about this important safety topic.

REMEMBERING ALICE—Trisha Henley recently opened "Alice's Garden" consignment shop in the Skidder's Row building on Main Street, Bethel. Henley will offer good quality clothing on consignment "in styles that appeal to everyone. I got feedback from people in the community that a consignment shop is needed. I hope they will come out and fill the store," she said. Her particular focus will be on teenagers — inspired in part by her late niece, Alice Henley, who died in a college dormitory fire in New York earlier this year. (Alice was also the niece of Trisha's sister-in-law, Madeleine Henley, the former town manager of Bethel.) Alice, said Trisha, was very talented artistically, and also had unusual taste in clothing. "When Alice died, I wanted to start a place where kids like her could find their niche," said Trisha. "I felt she didn't get the respect she deserved until after she died. I'd like to make that happen in this corner of the world. There's a lot of talent in this town, hidden in these kids." She hopes to sponsor an art show to help young area artists show their work, as well as display some work in her store. Above, Trisha sits in a quiet corner of the shop set aside for reading.

BRYANT POND COUPLE EARN NATIONAL QUALITY AWARD

John and Deanne Rothwell of Bryant Pond, based in the Prudential Insurance Company's Rumford Agency, each have received the National Quality Award, one of the insurance industry's highest honors. The couple has been with the Rumford Agency since 1992; they service clients in the Oxford Hills and Bethel areas. Both are natives of Maine.

In addition, the Rothwells recently attended Prudential's annual Regional Business Conference in Nashville, Tenn., which brings together the company's top performing representatives in sales and quality customer service from 700-plus agencies across the country.

John and Deanne first met while studying business administration at the University of Maine at Orono. They each hold a bachelor of science degree. After college they worked in the Boston banking industry for four years and came to the Rumford Agency as representatives in 1992.

Deanne's father, Dick Bodemer, recently retired after 30 years as a representative with the same Prudential agency and Deanne's brother, Dennis Bodemer, is a representative at Rumford Agency as well.

MALCOLM C. GOULD JR.

Malcolm C. Gould Jr., 67, of Bethel, died Thursday, Aug. 21, 1997, at his home.

Malcolm was born in Providence, R.I., on Sept. 15, 1929, the son of Malcolm C. Sr. and Jessamine Sweet Gould. He attended East Providence High School.

On April 29, 1961, Malcolm married the former Caroline Vanable and they moved to Bethel in 1962 to raise their family. They were blessed with a daughter and enjoyed watching her grow up and become a mother herself.

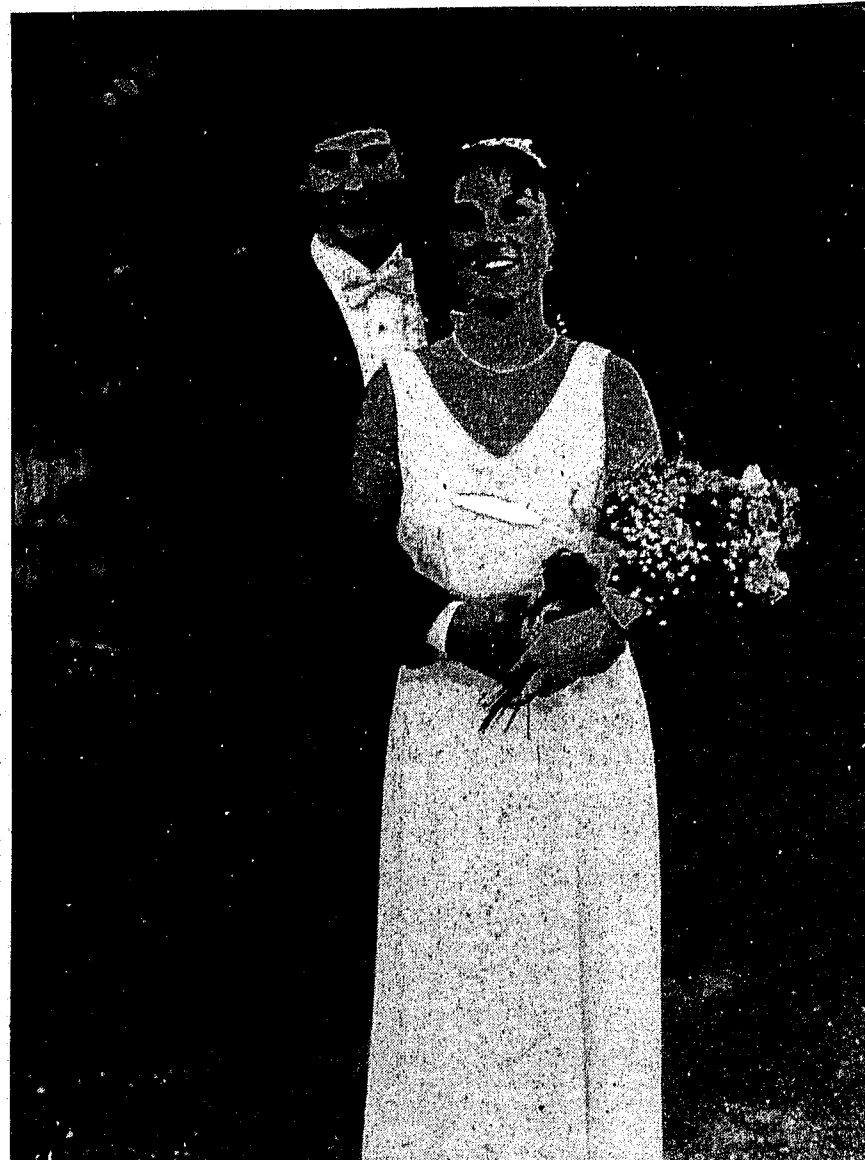

Malcolm worked for many years in the restaurant business before his love for working with wood dictated a career change to employment with wood mills. He worked at many local mills over the years, including Stowell's and Ekco mills. He later went to Wilner's Wood Products, working as a machine operator before retiring from there in 1992.

Malcolm was very active in the Bethel Lions Club and was awarded a 30-year member pin this past year. He was also active in the Grange, a member of Round Mountain Grange of Albany, the Maine State Grange and the National Grange. He was the past chairman of the Mollycoddett Days for several years and was very proud of the continued success of the event. He was associated with the West Parish Congregational Church of Bethel, he was a fan of John Wayne, enjoyed making all types of wood crafts and could always be found in the company of his dog Goldie, to whom his family affectionately called "his shadow."

Survivors include his wife of 36 years; one daughter, Susan and her husband Mark Mallory of Bethel; one sister, Doris Mills of Bethel; one brother, George of Bethel; a granddaughter, Samantha; and several nieces, nephews, grandnieces and grandnephews.

Funeral services were held Aug. 24, at 7 p.m. at the Greenleaf Funeral Home, Bethel. The family suggests that donations be made to either Maine Cancer & Research, P.O. Box 533 DTS, Portland, ME 04112, or Pine Tree Epilepsy Association, 622 Congress Street, Portland, ME 04101.

Mr. & Mrs. Adam Luxton

Katrina Michelle Mills and Adam David Luxton were united in marriage on the evening of July 11, 1997. Pastor Cliff McMullen officiated the ceremony at Pleasant Valley Bible Church in West Bethel.

The bride was attended by Lani Curato of Rumford as maid of honor. Bridesmaids were friends Erin-Rose Schneider and Michelle Perry, both of Rumford, and Faye Souve, sister-in-law of Locke Mills.

Wade Luxton served as his brother's best man. Caesar Morgan of West Paris, Kevin Marshall of Bethel and Derek Souve of Locke Mills were groomsmen.

Shainna Rose Mills was flower girl and Nathan Mills was ring bearer.

The outdoor reception following was held at the home of Kenneth and Geneva Goddard in Hanover. The bride and groom went camping in Vermont for their honeymoon.

Katrina is the daughter of Pamela Mills and Philip Mills, both of Rumford. Adam's parents are David and Debby Luxton of West Bethel.

The couple will reside in Machias where the groom will be attending the University of Maine at Machias.
